About People and Things

By C. B. McDowell

SOME PUMPKINS

I have seen huge pumpkin vines in the rich river bottom lands of Missouri and Iowa and on the rich peat lands of California, but I have never seen a pumpkin vine to compare with the one now growing in my garden in West Elba.

The vine came up volunteer by the side of a worm bed that had been treated with about 100 pounds of cottonseed meal for worm food. I measured the vine Tuesday morning and it is 54 feet long. It has grown over a six-foot hedge, down the other side and to the top of a 12-foot plum tree. It is only a half vine, as it came up by the side of my chicken yard and the chickens have kept that side of the vine eaten off.

There are over 40 pumpkins on the vine, some of them up in the plum tree and hedge. The vine is still growing fast and threatens to cover the whole locality. If anyone doubts the veracity of this account, he is welcome to come and look at the vine. A number of people have seen the vine and they all say they never before saw such a huge pumpkin vine.

LUKE SCORES AGAIN

L. C. (Luke) McCollough, who has a habit of talking unusually, yesterday, in a talk to what have you, brought a stalk of corn to the Elba Clipper office. He said he knew it was a bunch bean vine because he had brought bean seed at a such days with three days to go before August appears. Oldtimers say the vine never saw anything like it before.

MIKE MADDOX BETTER

Mr. & Mrs. Oscar Vaughan visited Mr. & Mrs. Luther Vaughan in Elba Sunday afternoon. Mr. Madcox has spent his last many weeks in a Birmingham hospital where he underwent a pair of major operations. The Vaughn report Mr. Madcox has shown a surprising improvement and it is thought his recovery will be complete. Mr. & Mrs. Madcox are former residents of Elba.

SHORTY SHOOT FOR MOON

In a game of softball following the Troy-Air-Sail game, Shorty Martin decided to copy the style of the Trojan's ace pitcher. He took a long swing, his eye on the moon. His delivery shot the ball straight upward instead of plateward. He did not try the Trojan style of delivery any more.

DAVIS FAMILY HOME

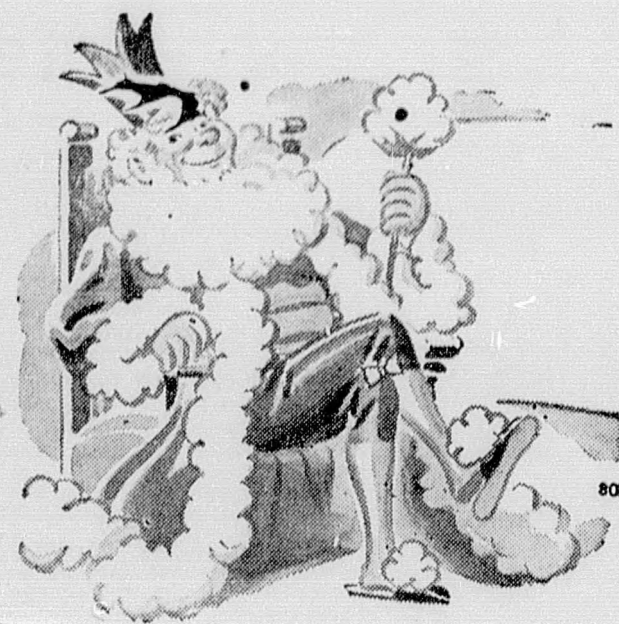

Rev. Fred L. Davis motored to Dalton, Ga. one day last week to pick up his wife and daughter. Mrs. Davis had been visiting several weeks. What, Mrs. Davis' wanderings about the country, attending religious gatherings and visiting relatives, good part of the summer. Brother Davis, like Principal Sam Casey, can consider his vacation over and settle down to routine habits.

NOW WE OFFER THE BEST GINNING SERVICE

Your Cotton Receives Processing "Fit For a King" In Our Gin

HOW IT WORKS!!

One of the oldest and most reliable manufacturers of ginning equipment—LUMMUS—have furnished the machinery for this gin. This week we completed the installation of a "24-SHELF DRYER."

When cotton comes to our gin it now passes over 24 shelves on its way to the saws and is thus assured of a better job of drying. The cotton passes through four cleaning preparations before it hits the saws. This gives cotton a top grading turnout.

Trash is removed in our cleaners. They are of the latest type and do a thorough job of removing the pepper trash that lowers the grade of cotton if it is not all taken out.

Each operation of the gin is pulled by a separate motor, thus assuring top performance of each piece of machinery in the plant. With top performance of good machinery such as we have installed, the grower is insured that his cotton will truly receive "Service Fit for a King."

The Cotton Grower Profits

Your cotton will bring you more profit when ginned by us. Small trash is removed and the grade of cotton is not lowered from this defect.

A proper job of drying is done without damaging fiber or reducing the weight excessively. A minimum amount of heat can be applied to the cotton going in our gin because it passes over 24 shelves before reaching the saws. With our system a minimum of heat is applied to the cotton over a large area. This enables us to properly dry it without damaging the fiber.

Top grading and turnout mean more money in your pocket. You worked hard during the spring and summer to grow it. Labor to pick it was expensive. So don't take any chances with your "margin of profit" by risking faulty ginning. Bring your cotton to us and insure yourself of top grading and highest possible return on this year's crop.

West Coffee County Soil Conservation

By C. H. Harper
Soil Conservationist
There are three practices necessary to have a good pasture. They are grazing management, fertilization and mowing to control weeds. Convinced proof of this is shown by Oscar McColough, Harold Hudson and Bill Odges.

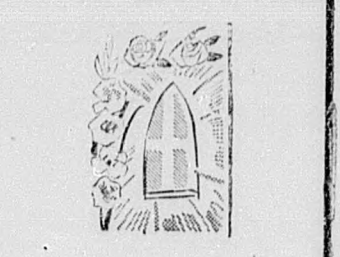

These farmers mow their pastures at least twice during the summer. Under this treatment weeds are disappearing and are being replaced with a close sod of grass. This has increased the carrying capacity of the pasture and prevents undesirable flavors in the milk.

The best time to mow the weeds is when the blooms first appear. At this stage the food reserve in the weeds is at its lowest point and there is no danger of scattering seeds in the mowing operation.

Many other farmers in the county report that this conservation practice pays big dividends. Pastures provide low cost feed for livestock, but good pastures cannot long exist if weeds are allowed to choke out the grasses and legumes.

Good sods like that found in these farmers' pastures not only produce an abundance of high quality feed but serve also to control soil erosion. Pastures taken over by weeds soon begin to erode as weeds fail to form sufficient sod to protect against soil washing.
